HAWAII TO HAVE ART EXHIBITS IN NEW YORK

For a moment I stood spellbound. Had the Honolulu Ad club moved to New York? I knew it was capable of anything. I dashed over to investigate, and found the "Travel Advertising" consisted of an exhibition of travel posters, made by all of the steamship companies of the Atlantic. It took me just one second to demand an interview with the director of the "Municipal Art Gallery" of New York, and in another 15 minutes I was with the directors offering them displays of every kind from the countries of the Pacific, and we at once made out a Pacific program for next year that will place Pacific lands prominently before New Yorkers for several months during the year of 1915.

The "Municipal Art Gallery" in New York occupies the entire ground floor, the basement and a gallery of the immense Washington Irving high school, and in connection with the art gallery there is an auditorium for travel motion pictures that seats 2000 people and you will see now the splendid possibilities of a Pan-Pacific exhibit that will last for three months, with stereopticon and motion pictures nightly on each of the Pacific lands.

Fortunately, I am officially authorized to speak for Australia, Russia, the Philippines, and most of the other Pacific countries in these matters, and I have assumed the right to promise the hearty cooperation of Hawaii, as this will give the Ad club something to get busy on for 1915.

Frank Clark has attempted to retire from the tourist game, but intimated to me frankly at lunch yesterday that it isn't in him. He has made his pile and now remains in the game just for the love of the sport. It seems likely now that after the exhibits at the "Municipal Art Gallery" and the Burton Holmes Pacific lectures, that Frank Clark will organize and conduct the first annual around-the-Pacific cruise on one of the largest steamers in the world. Starting from New York, going through the Panama canal, up to San Francisco, and thence to Hawaii and around. I could tell him definitely what New South Wales and Australia would do in the way of advertising such a cruise, and in the other countries of the Pacific will do one-tenth as well as will Australia. Frank Clark will conduct the cruise. Mr. Clark has very generously offered to give his services to the "Hands-around-the-Pacific" movement in New York, and when we open our office there he will organize it and without compensation superintend its work.

This morning I was rushed up to meet Mr. Robert Lee Dunn, the managing director of the "Pan-American States Association," and there in the commodious club rooms of this organization he showed me the plans of the magnificent Pan-American Commercial building, 950 feet in height (the highest building in the world), the corner stone of which will be laid in September, the money having already been raised for this great structure. Mr. Dunn has been working on this scheme but a few years, and there is no more reason why there should be a Pan-American Commercial building in New York City than that New York should have a Pan-Pacific building. Most of the governments about the Pacific are now willing to seriously consider such a proposition. There are New York capitalists who, on the slightest encouragement, would advance the money to erect such a structure, and now that Pan-America has shown what she can do in erecting the largest office building in the world in the greatest city in the world, I trust we shall have no more creaking from the "I-dare-nots." If I hear any of it, I shall at once place them in nomination for membership in the "Better-dead club."

It is pleasant to relate that the editor of the Mid-Pacific Magazine and his secretary were the guests of honor at a lunch given them by the directors of the American News Company, and the "personal touch" Hawaii has now secured with these delightful, energetic gentlemen, I believe will mean much in the future advertising of Hawaii to the world. I was astonished to learn that they had all personally made the acquaintance with the Mid-Pacific Magazine, and were delighted with its pictures, and the kindly advice they gave, and offers of cooperation in the matter of distributing this magazine and pushing it made me feel good all over. I found it on the newsstands at the railway stations and about the city, and if all that the newsdealers say is true, I believe that by getting out a handsome new color-cover every month that I can soon have a circulation that will bankrupt me, for in common with every other magazine published, I get less for my product than the cost of the output; the poor dear advertiser—God bless him—being the real promotionist behind it all.

I called on my old magazine friends, and promised numerous articles on Hawaii and the Pacific, but then that is an old story. However, on my return to Hawaii, I am going to earnestly endeavor to get together those who can really write and explain to them just the kind of articles the magazines wish. You can always sell a magazine an article if you will give it what it wishes; but the young writer fondly imagines that the magazine is going to take an article because he has written it irresistibly. Now a magazine "wants" what it wants when it wants it.

For instance, one magazine wished me to write an article on Pearl Harbor with illustrations and descriptions of its "beating heights" from which the cannon would thunder down death and destruction to the enemy's vessels below. I explained that I would gladly give them such an article with illustrations on condition that they would let me put in an author's note to the effect that there wasn't anything higher than a molehill within ten miles of Pearl Harbor. I did not get an order for that article but sold another on the strength of a photograph I had of a camel harnessed to an American reaper in a far-off foreign land. Now that magazine wouldn't have taken anything on Hawaii but a dramatic "Gibraltar of the Pacific" story of Pearl Harbor. Later on I did land them on a surfing story, but I made them believe that it was their suggestion and not mine. The writing of a magazine article is the small end of it. First you have to find out the kind of material the magazine wishes. For instance, I took Joseph Stickney with me to "St. Nicholas." He had just received a check from another magazine for one of his articles, so I introduced him as a successful writer. For an hour the editors and Joe discussed Pacific topics, and when they parted it was understood that Joe was to send several articles on topics which I will not discuss at present, for these articles for "St. Nicholas." I consider Joe's "meat."

We had a day in Washington as the guests of the Pan-American Union and a luncheon of the "Hands-around-the-Pacific" club, with its President, Ex-Governor Frear, at the head of the table. But that is another story.

WOODS' SELECTION FOR LAND OFFICE EXPECTED PUBLIC ON THURSDAY

Apparently well-founded rumor today gave next Thursday as the probable date when Governor Pinkham will announce the selection of Palmer Woods as land commissioner to succeed Joshua D. Tucker. The rumor is further confirmation of the report yesterday that Woods has withdrawn his name as a candidate for U. S. marshal.

STACKABLE HAS POOR REGARD OF ADMINISTRATION

E. R. Stackable, who recently was compelled to vacate the office of collector of customs, at Honolulu after serving in that capacity for about 14 years, is in San Francisco at the Stewart hotel, and expects to remain here for the next ten days or so, says the Chronicle of June 29.

"In spite of the fact that President Wilson promised in the early days of his administration that no official appointee of the president would be deposed for purely political reasons," said Stackable last night, "my own dismissal has come as no surprise to me, after seeing the way in which the chief executive and his cabinet have acted. I think I am safe in saying that never before in the history of the country has a customs collector been asked to resign as I was. There is no need for we are appointed for four-year terms, and all that is necessary to get rid of us is to wait till our duties end automatically and then fail to reappoint us. But President Wilson has now been in office long enough to show his hand, and the fact that he has broken promise and precedent is no surprise to me."

According to Stackable, the Hawaiian sugar industry is threatened by ruin owing to the administration's tariff policy. He says that the man appointed as his successor, Malcolm Argyle Franklin of Mississippi, has not yet assumed the duties of his office.

GRAND JURY IN SESSION TODAY EXAMINES MANY

What is believed to have been the investigation of a case implicating persons charged with a statutory offense, was taken up during the session of the federal grand jury which convened at 10 o'clock today. The grand jury adjourned at noon, and it is expected that a report, setting forth the results of the several sessions, will be submitted to the court tomorrow morning.

Subpoenas were issued this morning for Sam Halstead, Mrs. Kaimi, Mary Pimental, Mary T. Seabury, Minnie Pimental, Dr. L. R. Gaspar, L. B. Smith, Jesse Gouvel, Dr. W. C. Hobdy and Lizzie Napelo. The first seven on the list appeared and gave testimony before the grand jury. The remainder could not be located by the deputy marshal in time to appear before adjournment was taken. Subpoenas also were issued for three persons residing in places outside of Honolulu, but were not served, pending instructions. In obtaining the testimony of several Hawaiians, the grand jury found it necessary to secure the services of an interpreter.

There is further confirmation of the report yesterday that Woods has withdrawn his name as a candidate for U. S. marshal.

Neither the governor nor Woods will discuss the matter at all. Failure to secure action at Washington on the naming of Woods as marshal is ascribed as the reason for placing Woods in the territorial office. His inclinations, it is said, have always been rather along the line of the territorial job.

BIG ADVANCE IS MADE IN WORK OF HAWAIIAN BOARD

Report of Corresponding Secretary Will Be Read at Annual Meeting

Splendid advancement in all departments of the work during the past year; opportunities for still greater service on one hand, and money stringency and the cut in the new budget over that of last year on the other, are problematic points which will be brought out before the Hawaiian Evangelical Association in the annual report of Rev. William Brewster Olson, corresponding secretary. The annual meeting of the association will convene at Wailuku, Maui, tomorrow, and continue until June 15, at which time this report will be presented.

The opening address at the meeting will be delivered by Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, D. D., of Topeka, Kans. Other features of unusual interest are included in the program. Great emphasis will be laid upon the liquor question by Rev. J. W. Wadman, Dr. W. P. Ferguson, Samuel Robley and Dr. J. E. Cowan. There will also be an illustrated lecture by Captain Oscar J. W. Scott, chairman of the 25th Infantry, a sports night at the Alexander House gymnasium, a lecture on tuberculosis under the auspices of the board of health, and various other entertainments of an interesting and instructive nature. Prominent in the discussion will be Rev. A. A. Ebersole, Rev. O. H. Gulick, Rev. J. L. Howwood, Theodore Richards, Dr. J. F. Cowan, Rev. A. S. Baker, Rev. R. B. Dodge, Rev. Akako Akana, Rev. H. K. Poepe and Rev. H. H. Harris.

Unusual interest attaches to the Inter-Island music contest to be held Monday evening, July 13, in the Maui theater. As the male members of the Molokai chorus will be detained at home owing to the work of the grand jury, this island probably will not compete. Kauai, Maui and Oahu, however, are said to have strong aggregations and each is confident of carrying off the banner. Theodore Richards is in charge of this feature of the convention.

Leaving by the Mauna Kea Wednesday morning, the delegates will arrive at Wailuku in time for the pipe organ recital at the Wailuku church that evening. The following morning, the business work of the convention will be commenced. Rev. R. B. Dodge, pastor of the Wailuku church, assisted by Mrs. Dodge, will be the official host of the 1914 meeting.

MOONLIGHT DANCE AT WAIKIKI INN TONIGHT

Y. W. BASKETBALL GIRLS AGAIN WIN FROM MAUI TEAM

[Special Star-Bulletin Wireless]
WAILUKU, July 7.—The visiting girls' basketball team of the Honolulu Y. W. C. A. again won from the local team last night in Alexander House gymnasium. The victory was an easy one for Honolulu. The score at the end of the first half was Honolulu 27, Wailuku 10; second half, Honolulu 30, Wailuku 18.

FLOWER AND PLANT SHOW PLANNED FOR MID-PACIFIC CARNIVAL

Hawaii's flowers, palms, ferns and other plants are going to be utilized next year by Director-General James D. Dougherty in the perfecting of one of the most attractive features of the Mid-Pacific Carnival. Mr. Dougherty stated this morning that the plan along this line for next year is not to have an exhibit of flowers, but a flower and plant show which would be a competitive affair.

"I want this matter brought to the attention of the public in order that the residents of Honolulu may commence at an early date to raise specimens of hibiscus, palms and ferns for exhibition," said the director-general.

Gerrit P. Wilder has become interested in the proposed plan and he probably will be chosen to head the committee in charge of the project.

For an alleged infringement of the existing laws against having opium in his possession, Ah Cheu, a Chinese, was fined $50 and cost when found guilty at police court yesterday.

Charles Kapu, alleged by the police as a vagrant, was brought before District Magistrate Monsarratt yesterday and fined $10 and costs.

to be expended. There was some discussion on the matter and Chairman Caldwell, after reporting that the wharf will be safe for at least two years in its present state, suggested that this amount be incorporated in the amount of money which the board will request from the next legislature, which suggestion met with the approval of the board. Necessary repairs will be made on Pier 7 from time to time in order to keep the structure in good condition.

The commission voted to rent the old pilot house to Young Brothers, Ltd., for the housing of pilot boats. Young Brothers will be required to remove the tower, keep the structure in repair and take out $500 worth of fire insurance in favor of the Territory. The monthly rental will be $10.

The offices of the Board of Harbor Commissions have been removed from Pier 7 to the basement of the Executive building, and will occupy the quarters recently vacated by the water works department. All future meetings of the commission will be held in the new quarters.

A communication was received from a committee of residents of Keane, Maui, requesting the board that repairs be made on the Keane wharf to insure the safety of passengers landing or departing in small boats on steamer days. The matter was referred to the engineer.

Chairman Caldwell reported that he has informed the Inter-Island that the board at present has no available funds for doing any extensive repair work to McGregor's Landing. The board, however, intends to expend $50 to keep the wharf in condition until the completion of the new Kihel wharf.

SEN. KNUDSEN IS SPEAKER AT RICE MEETING

There was a reposing meeting of the members of the Charles A. Rice campaign committee at noon today, a feature of which was the address by Senator E. A. Knudsen, who has just returned from an extensive trip to Europe and across the continent.

Senator Knudsen stated that the feeling throughout the United States was that there would be a Republican landslide at the November elections. He met at a conference men in business life from all parts of the country and they were practically unanimous in the assertion that the present unfortunate conditions throughout the country are due to the policies of the present Democratic administration.

"Throughout the country," said Senator Knudsen, "there is a widespread depression, which is becoming worse as the president's 'watchful waiting' policies are developed, and that in spite of the assertion of the chief executive that it is a 'psychological' mistake, it is concrete enough to discredit the Democratic administration."

Action was taken to make the meeting in Liliuokalani school for the first precinct this evening a success. Over 250 special notices of the meeting have been distributed in the precinct and all interested in the candidacy of Senator Charles A. Rice for delegate are invited to attend.

Another meeting which is being looked forward to by the friends of Senator Rice is that in the fifth precinct of the fourth district, which will be held in the store opposite the offices of the Rapid Transit Company on Alapai street, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. The room will hold about 200 people and the indications are now that it will be well filled.

MORE THAN 2000 FOOT SOLDIERS TAKE THE FIELD

About 2300 foot soldiers are studying the defensive problems of Oahu at close range now, the entire 25th Infantry being in camp at Red Hill, while the 1st battalion, 2d Infantry, today established a semi-permanent camp between Fort Rucker and Koko head. Both outfits will be in the field for two weeks or more, working out problems which might have actual bearing on the holding of Oahu against an invader.

The 25th Infantry left Schofield Barracks yesterday morning and went into camp at Red Hill last night, having made a good march without accident or incident. The 1st battalion of the Shafter "Co-
